Where Am T?

293 words

I am scared but I feel relief. It's pitch black but I still see it all. I'm cold but I feel warmth. It's almost as if I'm floating. I have never been here but it feels really familiar. I try to take a deep breath but I can't. I don't know where I am. I'm lost.

But then I see it, a bright light, the brightest light I have ever seen. It looks like a star, but once I get closer to it I realise that it's a gate. I start to understand. Am I O.K with this? Do I want this? And when the giants call to ask me what I'm worth, I turn around, push through hell and rise. I will prove myself and face it. This is the reality. There are no heroes and villains.

The northern lights

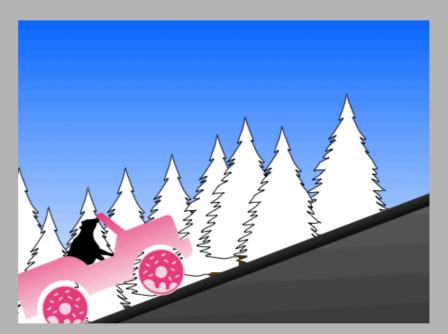

It's so silent. The only thing I can hear is my own breath. I can feel my lungs filling in with cold fresh air. The colours in the sky are turning from green to even greener. Colours are getting more powerful the longer I look at them. The colours are given so small. The universe looks larger than ever, now I understand it really is boundless. It's so cold. I can feel that my legs are starting to shiver. I'm having goosebumps. I can see my own breath steaming and even feel the darkness around me. I feel almost scared. But the view is breathtaking.

Maa

Kevään tulo alkaa jo tulla
Jotkin lumikasat vielä sulaa
Välistä auringon pilke paistaa
Mutta kylmän viiman voi nenällään haistaa
On jo toukokuun puoliväli
Pian lomailemaan lähtee koulun väki
Kesärenkaatkin vaihtuu alle
Ja pian heräilee myöskin nalle
